

2022 RICH Writing Institute Registration Open

Synchronous Online dates July 11 – July 15, 2022
University of Kentucky, Lexington KY

In this week-long working institute, which is now offered in a synchronous online format, you will receive personal writing and statistical assistance from an exclusive group of internationally renowned faculty. The goal of the RICH Writing Institute is to assist virtual attendees to prepare a manuscript that is ready to submit to a peer-reviewed journal. We will coach you every step of the way to achieve this goal. The week will include writing time, in-depth consultation, and presentations by RICH faculty on manuscript development. Presentations and content are in English. Members of the faculty speak South Korean, Chinese, and Spanish fluently and can assist with interpretation.

Attendees have the option of attending the following presentations and receiving individual consultation on:

- Structure of a data-based manuscript
- How to write effective introduction, methods, results and discussion sections
- How to develop appropriate text, tables, and figures to report statistical findings
- How to analyze and present your data for more effective manuscripts
- How to respond to reviewer critiques
